LOUISIANA AND AL. - Louisiana Governor B transpose state's election laws and remove single-ballot use of electronic voting machines through a legislative override and has signed the bill into law. This law, according to national election law experts, eliminates one of the few remaining states that used electronic voting machines. The bill passed the state in the house with a 68-26 vote and the Senate with a 16-11 vote. Nationally, there are calls for a national standard on electronic voting machines.

WASHINGTON STATE - The Washington Supreme Court has ruled that the state’s ban on the use of electronic voting machines is constitutional. The court ruled that the ban, which was put in place to protect against hacking, is not a violation of the state’s Constitution. The court also ordered the state to provide a plan for how it will ensure the security of electronic voting machines.
