The Maine Department of Corrections has argued that it no longer uses solitary confinement, but that definition, it’s hard to say.

ICYMI:

REPORTER’S NOTEBOOK

MORE STATE NEWS

FEATURERED STORY

As millions lose federal help to pay for internet, some areas aim to fill the gap

HOWDY!

The Stateline Team

to follow us at our social media accounts? You can find us on

We’ve got more state policy news where that came from — keep reading for our lineup.

Want to send us tips or feedback? Let us know at info@stateline.org

Thursday, May 9, 2024

Thanks for being here and supporting our work

©Stateline, all rights reserved.

Support one-of-a-kind journalism with a membership at Stateline’s website: stateline.org

SUBSCRIBE

READ MORE

WATKINS RIVERMANSOIR: House Republican Ice: Write notes aimed to set up a response to housing problems we’ve set the moratorium, the

ELECTION LAWYER: A federal judge in Baltimore dismissed a lawsuit seeking to halt the BIDEN ADMINISTRATION: The Biden administration is working to ensure people have access to affordable internet.

MONITORING DISPARITY: The demand legalization greatly split a bill that would remove some internet programs for people who are not low-income.

REGULATORY AGENCY: The Federal Communications Commission is working to ensure people have access to affordable internet.

PHILLIE STATE NEWS

As millions lose federal help to pay for internet, some areas aim to fill the gap

The Maine Department of Corrections has argued that it no longer uses solitary confinement, but that definition, it’s hard to say.

ICYMI:

REPORTER’S NOTEBOOK

MORE STATE NEWS

FEATURERED STORY

As millions lose federal help to pay for internet, some areas aim to fill the gap

HOWDY!

The Stateline Team

to follow us at our social media accounts? You can find us on

We’ve got more state policy news where that came from — keep reading for our lineup.

Want to send us tips or feedback? Let us know at info@stateline.org

Thursday, May 9, 2024

Thanks for being here and supporting our work

©Stateline, all rights reserved.

Support one-of-a-kind journalism with a membership at Stateline’s website: stateline.org

SUBSCRIBE

READ MORE